Subject: Potential Venue Options for Pop-Up Alpine Evening

Dear Arwen,

Thank you for your thorough exploration of venue options. I have reviewed both locations and would like to present my operational assessment to help inform the final selection.

Option 1: The White Tower Upper Gallery (Minas Tirith)

This venue offers undeniable visual distinction with panoramic city views and elevated terraces providing a premium backdrop for the event. The eastern balcony location is ideal for the acoustic segment, with natural sightlines across the city walls. However, operationally, several logistical challenges arise. Access for attendees depends heavily on a central spiral staircase and narrow internal corridors, which would create bottlenecks during peak attendance. The catering setup is located one level below the performance terrace, requiring manual transport of all equipment and supplies between levels. Guest circulation space would be constrained near terrace access points, and the layout would complicate coordination between the performance area and outdoor segments.

Option 2: The Party Tree Hall and Grounds (Michel Delving, Shire)

The Party Tree Hall is the historic community gathering space of the Shire, nestled in Michel Delving's central green. The venue features a spacious ground-level reception area with direct loading access for all catering and music equipment, substantially simplifying setup logistics. An expansive adjoining courtyard—naturally suited for the optional horn segment—maintains clear sightlines and unobstructed guest flow throughout the event. The preparation spaces for food service and staging are entirely separated from attendee circulation, eliminating cross-traffic during transitions. Emergency access routes are clearly defined, and the intimate, convivial character of the setting complements the Alpine evening concept while remaining fully accessible.

Operational Recommendation

From a logistics standpoint, the Party Tree Hall presents substantially fewer operational constraints. The ground-level access, separation of service and guest areas, and outdoor courtyard arrangement would significantly reduce setup complexity, minimize transition times between activities, and ensure reliable guest comfort throughout the evening. While the White Tower retains aesthetic distinction, the Party Tree Hall's operational efficiency and accessibility better serve our event objectives.

Please advise which location you would prefer to confirm for the final booking.

Kind regards,
Frodo Baggins
